UiPath The Foundation of Innovation™

Facilitator's checklist

A list of tasks we recommend completing before delivering the session.

Facilitator’s checklist

1. Check out the course materials
   First things first, check out the course materials! Familiarize yourself with the course's content, aim, learning objectives, and expected outcomes.
   In the provided decks, in the slide notes, you will also find facilitator instructions. We advise you to read them, as they hold very important details to keep in mind, including how to deliver certain bits of content.

2. Adapt the housekeeping rules
   Before facilitation, as preparation, open the housekeeping rules deck and adapt it to your training context (we advise you to duplicate it in case you plan on holding trainings in different modalities).

3. Get agreement on the rules
   At the start of your session, go through the adapted housekeeping rules with your students to set the scene.

4. Share course resources with students
   Don't forget to share the course resources with your students before they're needed (we recommend you do this at the start of the learning experience).

5. Be clear
   During facilitation, highlight the key points, use simple language, and don't forget about the facilitator's notes.

6. Encourage participation
   Although we designed this course to be as engaging as possible, the students may need encouragement from your side to be present, active, to ask questions, and to engage in conversation. We recommend you encourage participation and be available for support.

7. Share the feedback
   We hope you found the materials insightful and that they added great value to your session. As part of our commitment to continuous improvement and since we provide these resources for free, we have a small favor to ask: spend a few minutes filling in the feedback form at the end of the presentation deck.

   Your insights and experiences are incredibly valuable to us. They help us fine-tune our materials and ensure they remain top-notch for future trainers like you.